- Scanning chapters and articles, when allowable by copyright law.
- We follow current national library best practices by quarantining all returned items for 72 hours before re-shelving and reuse.

What WE are doing (with other libraries):

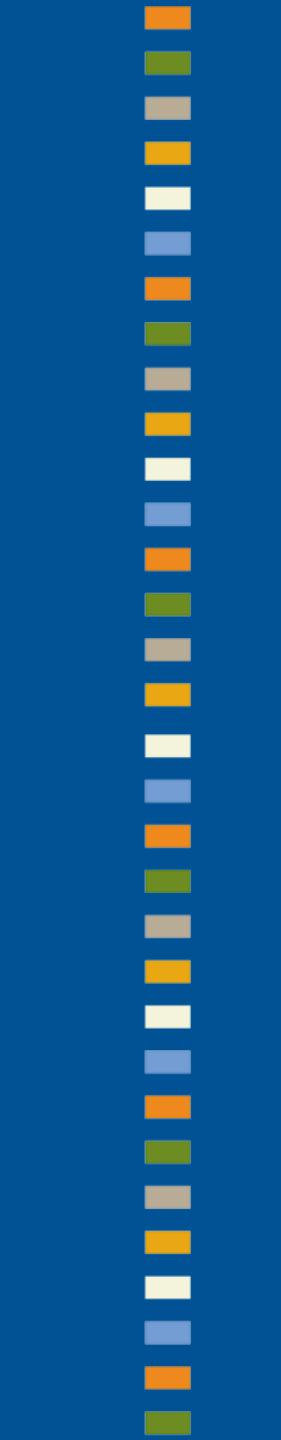

- We will request interlibrary loans for you from our partners, with the caveat that many libraries may continue to occasionally experience closures and long response times.
- Our courier service for materials held by Princeton University Library's Firestone and Lewis Libraries will most likely change regularly in order to follow the Institute's and Princeton University's system for minimizing COVID-19 spread. Please check the status of our service via our website: <https://library.ias.edu/hslcourier>
- Our orientations for the Fall Term will be held via Zoom and recorded for viewing later on.
- We would love to hear from you and answer your questions. Social distancing doesn't have to mean socially distant. Often, a conversation with you on the phone or via Zoom which you may set up using AppointmentPlus will provide us with insights to better assist you throughout the year.

What WE need from YOU when experiencing problems

- Please have your IAS card with you when picking up books.
- If you are having problems with using a database or resource offered by Princeton University Library, please use email or AppointmentPlus and Zoom to reach out to us! Access to these resources should be seamless via the wired IAS network, through Eduroam, or via OpenVPN.
