

Schedules for Trains into New York City and Philadelphia

Princeton offers easy access by train to New York City (via NEW JERSEY TRANSIT) and to Philadelphia (via NEW JERSEY TRANSIT and then SEPTA). Because there are so many trains, and the fares and schedules vary depending on whether you plan to travel on Friday evening, Saturday or Sunday, we suggest you check the train schedules on the web.

TO NEW YORK CITY VIA NEW JERSEY TRANSIT:

The New Jersey Transit site can be found at: <http://www.njtransit.com>. To travel to New York City via train you begin at the Princeton Station on the Northeast Corridor line. The location of the Princeton Station is marked on the Master PiTP Map.

You take the “Dinky” shuttle train from Princeton Station to Princeton Junction Station, then change to catch the train to New York City’s Penn Station.

TO PHILADELPHIA VIA NEW JERSEY TRANSIT AND SEPTA:

To travel to Philadelphia, you will need to take New Jersey Transit from the Princeton Station to the Trenton Station (both stations are on the Northeast Corridor line), and then transfer to a SEPTA train. The New Jersey Transit site and train schedules can be found at: <http://www.njtransit.com>. The SEPTA web site and schedule information is located at: <http://www.septa.org>.

The location of the Princeton Station is marked on the Master PiTP Map. You take the “Dinky” shuttle train from Princeton Station to Princeton Junction Station. Once you arrive at Princeton Junction Station, you need to get off the shuttle train and then take a New Jersey Transit train southbound to the Trenton Station.

At the Trenton Station, you will need to get off the New Jersey Transit train and take a SEPTA train to Philadelphia.
